VI. RATER COMMENTS

Lt Ragan is a talented, dedicated, and professional officer. He possesses the technical knowledge, foresight, and drive the Air Force looks for in its leaders of tomorrow. His technical expertise in the area of base-level computer performance management (CPM) and capacity planning enables the 15 MAC DPI computers to meet the increasing demands placed upon them with minimal additional hardware purchases. He conducted field assistance trips to MAC DPIs around the world to provide CPM assistance and to brief DPI staff members on methods to improve system performance. Because of his experience and proven abilities in working on the current base-level hardware and his foresight of future requirements, Lt Ragan has been selected for his new assignment as Phase IV Implementation and Conversion team chief for USAFE for the new base-level computer systems. The professional manner in which he performs a variety of jobs demonstrates that Lt Ragan is an officer the Air Force needs. Lt Ragan is a mission-oriented young officer capable of positions of increased rank and responsibility. Recommend promotion, selection for SOS in residence, and augmentation into the Regular Air Force.

VII. ADDITIONAL RATER COMMENTS ☒ CONCUR ☐ NONCONCUR

Lt Ragan's accomplishments in the area of Computer Performance Management on MAC's base-level computers are impressive and vital to these automated systems' capability to support MAC's airlift mission. An outstanding and versatile performer who goes that extra step or finds the time to do that extra task. He should be promoted to captain, attend Squadron Officer School, and be selected for Regular status.
